NOTE

- There are no special rates to agents.
- The Journal publishes articles submitted in English or French. Abstracts are in both English and French.
- An index is included free of charge in the December issue.
- No special rates for two- or three-year subscriptions are available.
- Subscriptions are for calendar year (6 issues) and cancellations are effective only at the end of the calendar year so credit is not given for the remaining issues in the current year.
- Retroactive subscriptions are available based on back issues availability.
- List of our Back Issues and a listing of other MAC publications are available by request to the business office or on our web site www.mineralogicalassociation.ca
- The MAC Newsletter was discontinued at the end of 2004. Our subscribers now receive Elements – An International Magazine of Mineralogy, Geochemistry, and Petrology **
-  Elements is co-published by fifteen mineralogical and geochemical societies. Subscribers to the following Society journals: American Mineralogist, Clay Minerals, Clays and Clay Minerals, MINABS Online, Mineralogical Magazine, The Canadian Mineralogist receive one subscription to Elements. As the subscription cost is shared among societies, we strive to eliminate duplication as much as possible. Hence a subscriber receiving several of these journals should get only one issue of Elements.
-  A Site license (authorized site) is a contiguous campus community or building that is located within the same city and reporting to the same administrative body. Within a multi-company complex or building, each company is considered a separate site.
- Abstracts Volumes of our annual meeting are no longer part of subscriptions, but are available for download to all on the MAC website. Printed copies of some issues are available for sale from the Geological Association of Canada.

Standing orders for Short Course Handbooks and Special Publication Series:

ISSN (printed): 0381-1743

Corporations and Libraries may place Standing Orders for one or more copies of the Short Course Handbook and Special Publication series. Each new volume published will be immediately mailed to your client upon release along with the invoice, which is payable upon receipt. Customers agree to accept all new publications issued in the series. Orders will be renewed automatically each year until cancelled. Only titles published after the order is received will be shipped under this contract. All goods are shipped via surface mail unless airmail shipping is requested by you. Shipping and Handling and GST tax on Canadian orders are extra.

ELECTRONIC ACCESS

Institutional subscribers (Corporations and libraries) will be provided with campus (see site license regulation) wide electronic access through IP recognition. Access through IP ranges on file will be carried over upon renewal. New subscribers will need to activate their online access at www.canmin.org. Instructions are available at http://www.mineralogicalassociation.ca/doc/ONLINE_ACTIVATION_INSTRUCTIONS.pdf.

Individual subscribers will need to set-up a user id and password to access the online version. Password and Username will be automatically carried over when renewal is processed. New subscribers opting for electronic access will need to activate their online access at www.canmin.org. Instructions are available at http://www.mineralogicalassociation.ca/doc/ONLINE_ACTIVATION_INSTRUCTIONS.pdf.

Electronic access to back files is available to all subscribers and will remain in effect to the last year subscribed. Plenty of new features are now available, such as full-text available in html or PDF format, improved search features, archived PDF files from issue no 6 (1957) to issue 37 (1999) and much more.

Our journal online can be accessed directly at: www.canmin.org

All requests or enquiries regarding electronic access to the Journal should be forwarded to the e-mail address below:

CLAIMS

Claims for non-receipt of issues are honored within one year of the mailing date. Claims after this date will be charged at current rate. If we begin to record an excessive number of claims for an account, we will request that the correctness of the mailing address and the receiving procedures be checked and verified. If losses continue at a high rate after that, then, for any future claims for the same issues, replacements will not be sent until a more secure address is provided to us. If the same address is to be used, we will ask for payment for any claim issues sent to it.

Forward all requests to the e-mail below:

claims@mineralogicalassociation.ca

We hope this information is helpful to you and your clients. Thank you for placing your order with us. Please feel free to contact us at any time for further information or help for your clients.
